STRIKING COMPARISONS.

Plain Talk to the People of Yolo County.

At the reception tendered the National Grange at Woodland on Saturday evening Desperate Act of a Young Man in last, William H. Mills, General Land Agent of the Central Pacific Railroad, was the principal speaker, and he told the people of Yolo county some wholesome truths. WILL OF MRS. CHARLES CROCKER. The following synopsis of his remarks is taken from the Woodland Mail of Sunday

W. H. Mills, the speaker of the evening, was then introduced. Although the hour was late and the speaker labored under the embarrassment of a consciousness of that fact, he spoke with a masterly command of his subject matter, and held the close and pleased attention of all intelligent auditors for fully an hour. Mr. Mills had originally been invited to ad-dress the Business Men's Association, and at a late day had been informed that he would be called upon to speak to the members of the National Grange. The speaker made a brilliant success in his effort to entertain and instruct his dual audience. No attempt will be made here to make a report of his logical and scholarly speech, and the following rapid resume of its main points conveys an inadequate idea of its depth and scope.

There is hope for that community in which the business men are found alive to its needs. When the business men organize for the common-good, something effectual will be accomplished. It is a serious fault in our American scoiety that serious fault in our American society that the business men do not manifest the innia Associated Press correspondent this evening that his mother left notes of the manner in which she intended to dispose of one of her proportion. In all our large cities the business men as a class neglect their duties of citizenship, and permit the municipal government to fall into the hands of the venal element.

The structural was the was when Congress adjourned last month with this exception—New York and Pennsylvania will give me more votes than they would have then. I would like to correct fall into the hands of the venal element.

The purpose of the speaker was to discuss community growth. He once saw a rare and beautiful painting that had left its lasting impression upon his mind. It was of a forest. In the foreground was a cabin and in its doorway sat a frontiersman in hunter's garb. The twilight shadows were deepening, and as the smoke curled upward from the hunter's pipe, he raised his eyes following the smoke to the tops of the Saloon Row.

Los Angeles, November 25th.—Sheriff Martin Aguirre, with the entire force of detectives, has been working upon the murder case of Charles Glass since yesterday morning without ceasing. To night the Sheriff and detections and detections are presented dreamily on ments and adornments. The painting was named "The Pioneer's Dream." The city hovered over the pioneer's head in a reverie as it has hovered over all American communities in pleasant anticipations. It is a dream in which Woodle the Communities in pleasant anticipations. prove as evanascent and as insubstantial as the smoke that floated the pioneer city. Community progress is of inward growth—a development of natural resources by local capital and enterprise.

The speaker here instituted a striking comparison between Fresno and Yolo When the visiting Patrons had come to Fresno they would find as beautiful a picture as was ever laid out under the sun. They would find there a vigorous bustling city of 30,000 people and miles upon miles of orchard and vineyard environing it. They would find a climate not more salubrious—they would find a soil not more fertile than blesses Yolo county. The speaker would remind the guests of the evening that they were now in the very heart of the very richest portion of Califor-nia. The soil of Yolo county in its pro-cludes by saying that none of the places the beautiful city of Fresno that when a can supply the water they have offered, sheep ranch covered its present site, Woodland was a young city of 2,500 inhabitants that city were on the market at $2 50 per acre, lands in the neighborhood of Woodland was selling for $100 per acre, what would they think? As to climate and soil Fresno claims no advantage over Yolo while as to transportation facilities it costs her more to reach the markets of the world. Whence, then, arises this difference in the prosperity of the two places? Why is it that Fresno lands command comparatively twice the price put upon lands here, which years ago were held at on the hand by Bowen, who used his $100, while those there could be had for $2 50 an acre? Must we not seek for an I Bowen was arrested to-day by an officer answer to these questions in the difference > munities' The speaker then took up the subject of irrigation and spoke of the grand possibilties contemplated by the scheme of using Clear Lake as a mighty reservoir for an irrigation system that would cover Yolo, Colusa and Solano counties. Merced people had spent $3,200,000 in the work of forming Lake Yosemite, by which they propose to store water for irrigation. It would barely take $25,000 to put the waters of Clear Lake under perfect control for irrigating purposes, and make them available for 150 times the supply of water that the Merced system affords.

Suppose Clear Lake had been located in some of the southern counties. Do you not think that long before this an enterprising people would have availed them-selves of the inestimable blessings it offers for the taking? This beautiful body of water is too near us to be appreciated. The speaker asked, have you in Woodland a public library? It is only in these mod-ern days that the wealth of a rich and boundless literature is placed within the reach of the masses. Remember that culture and the adornments of refined society increase property values and insure the per manency of the community. Have you a park? Have you laid out public gardens? Have you explored the earth beneath you for natural gas and artesian water?

drizzling rain had been falling all day, and prevented their being shown around the country. Judge McGarvey of Ukiah and others addressed a meeting in the Court days and $100 to make the passage; now House. They expressed themselves as the trip requires eight days and $8. Hence well pleased with their visit and left for the new relation which easy and quick transportation has established brings the climate of distant lands into close competition. By this means the climate and the cheap facilities of one country are exported In Belgium the average production per laborer is thirty bushels, while in California it is 2,000 bushels. Herein is a comparison which discovers California's immense advantage, and reveals why it is that mense advantage, and reveals why it is that our lands are valuable because production is abundant and cheap. The valley of the Po contains 2,000 square miles less than the Sacramento valley. Yet the population of the former is 9,000,000, and of the latter barely 200,000. What an empire might this valley be if the soil was cultivated with the fidelity which enables 9,000,000 neonle to maintain themselves are reserved. 000 people to maintain themselves prosper-ously upon 2,000 square miles less than is cultivated by 200,000 of us.

In conclusion, Mr. Mills paid an eloquent tribute to the Patrons, and in beautiful periods suggested lofty and patriotic sentiments, evoking at once a response of noble emotions and a burst of applause that seemed to cease with reluctance.

SILVER COINAGE. Views of a New York Bank President

He proposes to increase the coinage of silver, and says: "The subject is in a nutshell, if I interpret the existing laws correctly.

TOM REED OF MAINE.

He Still Thinks That His Chances for Speaker are Good. Washington, November 25th.—Very little has developed in the Speakership fight to-day. The representatives of the new States held meetings to day, but decided upon no particular course. It is generally conceded that three of the Congressmen will vote for McKinley. Carter of Montana is for Reed and another is uncertain. Hermann of Oregon is thought to be for Reed. McKinley has gained strength through the day, but Reed is greatly encouraged. In an interview to-day President Reed said, while summing up the Speakership contest as viewed from his standpoint: "The situation is the same practically as it a missapprehension which has gone abroad from Eastern quarters with refer-ence to the New York delegation. Last spring the delegation met and talked over the question of who should be the next Speaker. It was suggested that for purposes of their own, and in which I had no oncern, that the entire delegation should vote as a unit upon the ascertainment of the wishes of the majority.

"Then the statement was made that i was clearly evident that I had a majority. When it was decided to make it two thirds, no attempt was made to coerce any body. I had absolutely nothing to do with it, and is a mistake to assume or intimate that I

When questioned about the Speakership, my re-bly was that if the Republican party wanted me to be its candidate I would fee nonored. I say that now; but my posi-tion, as I said, is different from the other candidates. If it is deemed best to elecanother, there must be some reasons why I was not chosen. These reasons mus necessarily be derogatory to me, and that of course I am not willing to stand with-

NEW YORK, November 25th.-Dr. Mc New YORK, November 2011.—Dr. Mc-Glynn is daily showing less deference for the Pope, and his talk on the Pontiff's remedy for poverty is especially pro-nounced. He read the address of the Pope to the party of 300 French workingmen who visited him five weeks ago with derision. It taught very bad theology, he said, and the trouble with the Pope was that his eyes were in the back of his head, and not in front.

He was 1,000 years behind the age, which, however, was not to be wondered at, as they always selected a Pope who was a thousand years old. What they wanted in Rome was a young Pope, one 35 years of age, who would do some smashing—a Pope who thought in English.

said that the Government's wise and equitable policy assured tranquility to taly and guaranteed peace which, thanks to the concert of great powers, appears to be assured to Europe. This utterance was greeted with great applause. Continuing, the King said that the questions which might disturb the peace had not yet all been settled, and it was necessary, therefore, without undue demands upon the budget, to so continue to provide military and naval protection to Italian noity and independence.

He expressed the hope that the armaments which all powers were preparing would not be used. Italy, he said, would lay down arms in Africa when an international agreement should have been reached guaranteeing to her the very considerable ossessions she now had in that conti

THE CONSTITUTIONAL AMENDMENT AND CITY CHARTERS.

Out of the public debate of the propose constitutional amendment to be voted upon in a few months, we may hope for much enlightenment of the public upon constitutional law. Our evening contemporary responding to the recital of facts in yester day's RECORD-UNION, disingenuously defends by saying that if there is confusion in its reasoning, it is due not to it, but to the language of the Constitution. That is precisely what we have contended-that this is an involved question.

Submit the question to-day to a group of average voters who must pass upon it at the polls presently, and there will be a division of opinion as to whether the words declaring that a city charter shall supersede "all" laws inconsistent with it, removes the charter from the operation of laws passed subsequent to the ratification of the charter. The question will at once arise in every lay mind, "If the Constitution means to withdraw the operation of subsequent laws, why does it not say so in so many words?"

And to make it read to that end was the proposition of the RECORD-UNION. since between the reasoning that the only means of amending the charter provided excludes the operation of general laws, and the provision that all special laws inconsistent with the charter are made inoperative as to it, there is confusion in the lay mind. It will suggest itself, also, to the layman that the proposition of the Legislature to amend the Constitution in 1890, by striking out "special laws" and inserting "all laws," was due to a legislative belief that as it stands the Constitution is

Our contemporary says: Our contemporary says:

If the proposition of the Record-Union is tenable, and that an amendment be made to the Constitution inserting the words "all laws" in place of the word "special," such provision would not affect any general law passed after the adoption of any charter, because if the rule holds that subsequent general laws control, then this amendment would count for naught.

It is not a "proposition" of the RECORI Union-it is a proposition of the late Legislature. With us it was a doubt, and hence our idea that all doubt should be cleared away by positive and unmistakable expression, in plain Anglo-Saxon, that the State laws of the past and of the future shall not affect city charters-provided, always, that the people are prepared to set cities off as independencies a scheme that in New York proved disastrous and was abandoned.

OUT OF AFRICA.

There now remain no doubts whatever of the safety of Stanley, Emin Pasha and Dr. Peters. They are now sufficiently near to the line of the German settlements on the Zanzibar coast to remove them from all danger. Stanley's latest letter is a recital of privation, illness, battle and discovery. The great end of his fearful march from the Congo has been accomplished, and Emin Pasha and his party rescued from peril of a character that it will be fool-hardy to again court singlehanded. The conquest of Central Africa to civilization and commerce, the overthrow of the slavers and the subjection of savage tribes, are not again to be undertaken by any one man, with such inefficient support as Egyptian troops. The next move to open up the dark places of Africa must be made upon a purely military basis, and conducted by such a force as will be able to fortify and keep open safe lines of communication with the base safe lines of communication with the base of supply and reinforcement. There were those of the English and Belgian Geographical Societies, as well as English officers, and officers of the Khedive's Government, who held from the outset that ernment, who held from the outset that Emin Pasha could not, with his handful of Europeans and the Egyptian and native that Europeans and the Egyptian and native that Egyptian and native that the end of the year of being careless are to blame. Pupils are imitative, and copy the omissions of the plain at the end of the year of being out of forces at his command, hold the provinces over which he was appointed Governor-General, to loyalty to the Khedive. Their doubts and fears have been realized, and after ten years of struggle the territory so long occupied by the courageous Austrian northern route for the slave traders i

The law directing the holding of Teachers'

Institutes in the various counties of the State is a wise and beneficial one, no matter what the occasional adverse criticism on Institutes may occasional adverse criticism on Institutes may have been. We gather strength and comfort in these meetings. When viewing the ever increasing array of professional teachers, we see that our work is thus gradually and surely spreading, and recognized by the people as the foundation on which rests the perpetuity of our Republic. We take a natural pride and feel a justifiable exultation in being workers in the most important institution of the whole country as is the public school.

most important institution of the whole country as is the public school.

It is not amiss to refer in this place and at this time to the aims and the policy that during my incumbency I have tried to imprint upon the conduct of the affairs of our city schools. Of all the avocations that in the course of busy life I followed, the duties of this office, I must confess, have given me that pleasure and that gratification that is the concomitant of love. While not a professional teacher myself. I have constantly tried, while in office, ever to be a worthy colleague of yours, who considered it not alone his official duty but his personal obligation to be of service to his fellow-teachers and to smooth, wherever consistent with principle and duty, their, at best, not over-even path.

Rewarded as I have already been by having assigned me by the people work of such congeniality to my taste, yet has your courtesy and kindness—nay, even forbearance at times—made my official work a labor of love.

Ladies and gentlemen, many are the meetings that are to follow this one of the year 1889. Many will be the new faces that will join your ranks and wider will grow those halls that are to hold your number. I shall be with you as truly and sincerely in spirit, even if no longer intrusted by the people with what has been to me the pleasantest duty of my life—the administration of the city's public schools.

The Institute then adjourned to section

The Institute then adjourned to section work, being divided into sections A, B and C, Professor W. S. Monroe taking the subject of number and form, Joseph W. Johnson arithmetic and Mrs. E. B. Purnell hisory.

Mrs. Purnell spoke of the importance of history as a study in shaping the intelligence of the children and upon their future citizenship. It is co-relative with geography, as with literature. Little advancement can be made in either without imbibing some knowledge of history. The inductive method is largely followed. Prominent and salient points are used, to which facts dependent upon them are fastened, and the receptive mind gradually amasses a fund of historical knowledge. But we should not endeavor to load the mind with She elucidated a general plan from a few facts about the mound builders, and the discovery by Columbus, down through the olonial period to and through the constitutional period to the present time.

It is not so important in itself that the children should learn that certain men have lived, as it is that they should understand the influence that their lives and actions exerted on our country's attainments and destiny.

The scenes of the revolution, as well as of the civil war, could be made by the teacher a reality to the pupil. The different events form so many links in the chain, and history, whether our own or that of other countries, repeats itself.

Lessons committed verbatim are not nearly so effective as that the child should grasp the idea and express it in its own language. Gems of poetry delineating his torical events are very effective adjuncts. Mr. Johnson gave a practical illustration of teaching square root, taking a class of pupils who had had no previous instructions his method of teaching number and form. They belong to the primary grades, and require teachers fitted for the work to teach them successfully. The wisest plan places the most experienced teachers and those best qualified over the primary grades, and the sentiment is gaining ground, and rightly, that such teachers should receive as good compensation as those teaching the higher grades. A good grammar-schoo teacher may be a very poor primary teacher Arithmetic is a valuable mind-developer Were it not so it would be better to defer i until the child was twelve years old, when it would learn much more readily. Num-ber must be learned by the contemplation and the use of objects, not by the old method of symbols. At the same time the child must be taught to associate the symbol with the object as a definite quantity. The ability to count a thousand does not imply that the child has a clear perception of number. The object should be used until the child shows ability to mentally associate the object with the symbol which is given him—that is, that when the number three is named, its mind may present to it a picture of three definite objects. AFTERNOON SESSION. The Institute reconvened at 1:30 P. M., Professor Howard in the chair, all the members present, as well as a large num-ber of District School Trustees and others interested in the cause of education.

Professor Munroe explained to the sec

northern route for the slave traders i Miss Grace Bowen, the teacher of the with the approach of Thanksgiving appared to the slave traders i maiss Grace Bowen, the teacher of the Highland School District, read the following essay on "The Ingenuity of School Children," which was frequently applicable.

Day let us not forget the poor. The best sauce in the world for a Thanksgiving turkey is the consciousness of having been instrumental in providing some poor sufferer, some one with an empty purse, the means for enjoying on that day of thanks an unusual feast.

"Delightful task! to rear the tender thought; To teach the young idea how to shoot: To pour the fresh instruction o'er the mind, To breathe the enlivening spirit and to fix the generous purpose in the glowing breast." Yes, it is a "delightful task," to watch the gradual unfolding of the child's mind, which, like the rose, shows only the half-formed, imperfect petals at first, but little by little, these unfold and expand, until the perfect flower, in all its splendor breaks firth, to add its share of adornment to the world's garden.

his time between recitations; then his turn of mind, whether it be studious, inventive, artistic or otherwise, will be noticed.

Every child possesses a certain amount of ingenuity, and ingenuity is a form of genius; Minervalike, it springs from the brain matured, and fully equipped for conquest. We are often puzzled to account for the precocity of some children, and can only say with Emerson, "Nature is full of freaks, and now puts an old head on young shoulders, and then, a young heart beating under fourscore winters."

Much has been said and written about the remarkable aptness of childhood; how the selftaught Sebastian electrified the great Murillo by his wonderful skill in painting; how the little Alfred Tennyson, when left alone, amused himself by writing verses, which were said to possess considerable merit. These were rare examples of genius, the highest form of ingenuity, but it is the ingenious urchin found in the ordinary school room that should claim some notice.

History relates to us the clever manner in this turn of impendiction of the mind a school teacher, and they will grow up in their professions."

Those days are passed when the teacher was looked down upon, and to-day they are considered the leaders in the building up of the State and nation and of the molding of character.

The remainder of the afternoon session was occupied by Professor W. S. Monroe of Pasadena in an able and interesting lecture on discipline.

EVENING SOCIAL.

In the evening the teachers and their friends, to the number of about 200, came together at the Congregational Church for a social reunion.

A short musical programme, a comical composite declamation, and some very any and the state of the professions."

roe invited every one present to commun cate his name to his neighbor, his age weight, color of his eyes and hair, name of his father and grandfather, and any further account of himself that he found convenient. This humorous invitation resulted in an instant breaking of ranks and a reforming according to the social drift of those present. During this period coffee and sandwiches were served by a commit tee of ladies, who were reminded of the Bible saying, "Let him who would be greatest among you be his servant."

examples of genius, the highest form of ingenuty; but it is the ingenious urchin found in the ordinary school room that should claim some notice.

History relates to us the clever manner in which Sir Walter Scott, when a school boy, won the coveted position as head of the spelling class. He noticed that the boy who invariably held that place, always, when reciting, held fast to a convenient button of his waistcoat. Acting upon this suggestion, the quick-witted Sir Walter slyly cut off the magic button, and so won the desired place, for the youth, finding his favorite stronghold gone, became confused, missed the word and resigned his laurels.

It was just thattingenious manner of putting this and that together which enabled Sir Walter Scott to compile so many beautiful prose works, and charming poems. That faculty of minute observation has pictured to our imagination, "each crag and knoll," each "purple peak and flinty spire" of Scotland's mountain scenery.

In our own schools there is always one who is thus rarely gifted; sometimes there is more than one, but generally one genius is all that an ordinary school can support. It is he who is always into mischief, and yet he can never be accused of violating a rule. If there is a special penalty to be paid for communicating, this young schemer will manage to borrow all the knives, books, and slate pencils that he wants by a species of pantomime. (It is one of our duties to teach gestures, therefore we cannot punish if our instruction has been too thoroughly exemplified.)

It is that particular urchin who will smuggle a story book, always containing pictures, to his desk, then if he is caught reading, innocently affirms that it was the pictures and not the story which formed the attraction.

It is strange what a philosophical turn of mind thus specimen of ingenuity possesses. The pin-wheel and miniature wind-mill having been constructed, the young enthusiast spends much precious time trying to devise means of perpetual motion, by which the wheels may go round and st an ordinary rubber eraser properly appendaged with pen-points.

I will mention another instance of ingenious makeshift practiced by this lad which well ilustrates the aphorism, "Necessity is the mother of invention." Desiring a rubber band to fasten some compositions. I called upon the class to furnish the wished-for article; as no one volunteered to supply it, I was trying to find a piece of string which would answer the purpose when I noticed "that boy" tugging away at a refractory suspender. "What are you doing, Charley?" I asked. "Oh, I am only getting you a piece of rubber," he generously replied. Sometimes this particular genius is assisted in his inventions by the entire school, especially when there is in demand a new method of creating amusement.

ially when there is in demand a new method of creating amusement.

To illustrate: Early one afternoon an unusual confusion was created in my school, and as there was a great deal of laughing done, I made an immediate investigation, and found a number of grasshoppers jumping about the room in a lively manner. Not knowing where they came from, I swept them out and hoped for quiet. Soon, however, my hopes sank; another invasion filled the room, and "full well they laughed with counterfeited glee." Disposing of these as before, I fastened the lower windows and was again composing myself, when a third reinforcement appeared, somewhat arousing my suspicions. A rapid CENTLEMEN: AT A RECENT MEETING of the First Artillery Band, N. G. C., it was resolved that the full Band should offer their services gratuitously on the occasion of the unveiling of the monument to be erected to the memory of Mr. A. J. Stevens; but the fact that at least two-thirds of the Band have been engaged for the date fixed (Thanksgiving Day) in various parts of the country, rendering it impossible for us to keep our original intentions in this matter, as the day being a general holiday, the engagements are imperative, we regret exceedingly that we are obliged to be absent on that occasion, as we should feel proud to do honor to the memory of Mr. Stevens. Respectfully, [1t] ARTILLERY BAND.

myself, when a third reinforcement appeared, somewhat arousing my suspicions. A rapid search disclosed no less than four slate pencil boxes and one bottle full of the hoppers ready to be liberated.

This little incident convinced me that entomology was a most interesting study, and that my pupils had taken a sudden fancy to it.

All children are endowed with a great love of art, and the happy faculty of converting an artistic and really beautiful object into some other, perhaps not so artistic, but infinitely more pleasing to the child. I observed this aptness when I undertook to illustrate the minor principles of geometry. A newly-completed circle adorned the board. For a moment I turned my attention to some other matter, when a suppressed titter ran around the room. Behold! two immense feet had sprung mysteriously from the circle, great eyes beamed from the interior, while the young artist proudly pronounced the caricature a man!

Oh, those trying children! Matthew Arnold says, "That they are very much what their teachers make them." If that is true (and I think it is to some extent) then what a great teachers make them." If that is true (and I think it is to some extent) then what a great responsibility rests upon us. How much tact and skill is needed to direct those inquiring minds, and guide those impressible natures. There is a course lying midway between that of indifferent and that of the over-zealous teacher who, like the gardener, anxious for the wayward sapling to grow into a shapely tree, keeps pruning away the imperfect twigs until all its vitality is gone. Better that the tree should be strong and vigorous with a natural strength, than more shapely with an artificial shapeliness.

The child expects its pet schemes to be humored, and as a mother's kiss made Benjamin West a great artist, so the teacher's sympathies enlisted in behalf of the child and his small amusements may so win him that, i "If, as a teacher, wise, and strong, and good, Into my life then you had come that day, And bade me listen, as to who should say

And bade me listen, as to who should say Things grand and sweet to help me bear my fate,
Full well I know I had refused to wait;
And from your side had darted quick away,
Not over eager at your feet to lay
Homage, for which all asking comes too late.
But, listening, you came with eager eyes,
Seeming to bend your head to catch my thought;
And straightway in my heart there did arise
Things grand and sweet to meet yours, so inwrought
With yours, I know not in the swift surprise

Thus the aim of every true teacher ought to e to so instruct those precious little ones in-rusted to her teaching, that they may become ood and useful men and women, and As a bird each tond endearment tries to tempt its new-fledged offspring to the skies, for try each art, reprove each dull delay, allure to brighter worlds and lead the way."

Superintendent Hoitt next took up the ubject of "Relation of Trustees and School officers to the Public Schools." He said the Trustees, patrons of the schools and the teachers should know each other better and act in harmony. He said he noticed in the audience a number of Trustees from county school districts—men who had left their plow and farm labors to take part in the exercises of the institute. They were to be praised for their zeal in endeavoring to advance educational interests, and he proposed that the institute give them three cheers by the clapping of hands, which was done. When the Trustees came to know the teachers and pupils better there will be better schools. He said that some people who knew of none of the benefits of these gatherings of teachers had called them mutual admiration societies. They certainly would change their opinions i they would attend a single session. He called upon the Trustees who were present Responses were made by the following. all of which were interesting and entertaining: Joseph Heintz, San Juan District; Albert Coffman, Elk Grove; Jacob Broder, Natoma; David Reese, Florin; Christian Benedix, Franklin, and Mrs. J. E. Butler, White Rock.

The last-named Trustee, a lady who lives at White Rock, said they had an excellent teacher, Miss Edith Smith, and that ever census child in the district attended school regularly, which, perhaps, cannot be said of any other district in the county. Mr. Boden, of Mormon Island, spoke for orator, and paced up and down, the center of the room, narrating all the troubles of his district for the past decade to the amusement of all present. He thinks teachers are paid high, and he does not believe in the observance of helidays and the control of the half an hour. He is considerable of an

He believes the school eacher should be a tool of the Trustees, and the direction of the school in their hands

Mr. Boden's remarks were not calculated to make any of the teachers present de-sirous of securing a position under the Mormon Island School Board. Superintendent Burns, of Placer county made a short address upon the subject of the duties of school officers, full of good suggestions and to the point.

But we do claim that no method of selling property brings to the seller and buyer more satisfaction than auctions.

Buyers generally do better at auctions, because they come in open contact with persons who know values, and in bidding the price is established, therefore a buyer need not fear of paying too great a price. Property placed in our hands will be under certain auctionary rules, and the system we have adopted will give to the seller chances he has not heretofore had in Sacramento. While our sales are to be conducted on strictly business principles, we will aim to give satisfaction to both sellers and buyers.

Senator Dray and Dr. Brune also addressed the Board in favor of the Parkinson report. Dr. Brune referred to numer ous cases of diphtheria that had been caused in that part of the city by the foulness of the canal. Mr. McLaughlin said he was opposed to going in debt for this money. Dr. Parkinson said it was a nice state of affairs to ask people to come here and engage in manufacturing enterprises, and then when they do come prohibit them from carrying on any business by refusing to provide them with sewerage facilities. Mr. Luhrs said that an expense of $20, 000 even should not be allowed to stand in the way of such a work. People are sick and dying from the effects of these sewers, and something should be done.

Senator Dray said that unless something were done the people living along the line of the open sewer would probably take the matter in their own hands and fill up the canal in defense of their lives.

Mayor Gregory renewed his motion for rarily. The report made by Doctor Parkinson on the subject, and to which reference was made in the discussion, is as follows: Made in the discussion, is as follows:

Your committee has again carefully examined the Seventeenth and Thirty-first street canals, and finds that the conditions obtaining at the time of its former report are still the same. These canals, or ditches, were originally constructed for the purpose of surface drainage, the Thirty-first-street canal taking the water of Burns Slough, which used to traverse the southeastern portion of the city along the face of the old cross levee, and the Seventeenth-street canal acting as the outlet of a brick sewer on the same street, running from I to R, with a terminal capacity of 44 inches.

These canals, while unattractive in appearance, would be inodorous and practically harm-

These canals, while unattractive in appearance, would be inodorous and practically harmless, from a sanitary point of view, when carrying surface water only, and for many months of the year they would be perfectly dry. The nuisances at present existing are caused solely by the discharge into these ditches or their affuents of waste water from certain manufacturing establishments. In proof of this it is only necessary to examine the Thirty-first-street canal between K and L, and again between M and N, below the point (at M street) where an 8-inch pipe discharges into the canal.

In the absence of sewerage facilities in the eastern portion of the city, the establishments already referred to must continue to maintain the existing nuisances or cease operations, the existing nuisances or cease operation either of which alternative is undesirable. Th establishment and maintenance of manufacturing industries in this city is of the highest importance, and every facility should be afforded capital invested or desirous of investing.

Your committee therefore recommend:

1. That the brewery at Twenty-eighth and M streets be connected with the pipe sewer at Twentieth and O streets.

1. That the brewery at Twenty-eighth and M streets be connected with the pipe sewer at Twentieth and O streets.

2. That the pipe sewer now on the line of R street, east of Seventeenth street, be raised and graded, so as to carry it over the Seventeenth-street sewer, and continued westward along R street, so as to join the existing sewer at Thirteenth and R.

3. That this work be carried out at the earliest 3. That this work be carried out at the earlies possible opportunity, and that steps be subsequently taken to clean out and regrade both the Thirty-first street and Seventeenth-street

Your cormittee is aware that this is more o Your cor mittee is aware that this is more or less a temporary measure, and not a permanent improvement. It is, however, the readiest and most economic manner of abating an unsightly and most offensive nuisance, and, coupled with the arrest of the other discharges into these canals, will certainly remedy the present condition of affairs. A permanent system of sewerage is not likely to be adopted, or in operation, in the immediate future. Meanwhile ample facilities have been provided, and which can ultimately be used with advantage in the surface drainage of the neighborhood in which they have been placed.

against Harris. Some of the charges, he claimed, had been satisfactorily proven, while others had not. But on the whole he argued that the accused should be dismissed from the force.

Hart followed in an eloquent and mowerful appeal for officer Harris. He denounced the character of the testimony of-fered by the prosecution, and declared that the whole thing was the result of a care the whole thing was the result of a care fully concocted scheme, backed by the wealth of the Frenchman Gaston, to bring wealth of the Frenchman Gaston, to bring the colored school, but Director Hopley moved that the matter be deferred "until the coming election," and it was so the accused-officers into disgrace and secure the accused-officers into disgrace and secure moved that the matter be deferred "until their dismissal from the force. All this, he after the coming election," and it was so tuted a vigorous regime in the Second and L street quarters. He also spoke in the severest terms of officer Harvey, who, he claimed, had been guilty of the basest ingratitude toward officer Harris, after the latter had done him a favor in lending him money to tide over his pressing necessities.

Director Hoplev reported that the roof of the Fourth and Q street building was in a leaky condition, and Director Tufts reported a similar condition of affairs at Thirteenth and G streets. Referred to the Building and Repairs Committee.

When the Commissioners reassembled Charles T. Jones made the closing argument for the defense. He asked the Board to discard all sympathy, prejudice or political feeling that they might have in the matter either way, and judge the defendants upon the merits of the testimony of fered. He called attention to the fact that Harris and Cunningham had demanded an investigation, immediately upon the allogations against them being made public. ants upon the merits of the testimony ofan investigation, immediately upon the allegations against them being made public, and said that was not the action of guilty men.
